DE PROFUNDIS.

Not yet are deeds fruition of my thought,
Nor is this body symbol of my soul.
For evil ever in this life is wrought
That chills the soul and its divine control.
Surely I shall not be four weeks,
Halting and stumbling on the chosen way,
Bleeding by the pure and perfect light I seek,
Upon the threshold of eternal day.
I do not mourn discredit to my fame
Who smile at time and his confining shores;
"This provokes the burning blush of shame"
The flesh still grows, though the spirit soars;
But my heart's anguish who can understand
Or stay my folly with a guiding hand?

The Return Of Mary.

By W. R. ROSE.

The air was growing chill in the early twilight when Mary Hamerton opened the little garden gate and went swiftly down the path to her father's house. How familiar everything looked! How few changes 15 years had wrought! No doubt the greatest change was to confront her within the old home. She slipped through the unlocked doorway into the kitchen. There was a young woman there, a young woman who looked up with startled eyes when Mary entered. But Mary explained her presence in a few words, and the young woman, whose heart was tender, listened with a suspicion of tears in her eyes and gladly seconded her suggestions. And Mary learned that the young woman was the daughter of a neighboring farmer, who had come over to care for Gilbert Blair and his home. No, the old man was not, as Mary had feared, in failing health. He was feeble, it was true, and kept to his chair and his reading more, but he was not ill. Yes, he was in the sitting room now in the old rocker by the fireplace. The young woman had just fixed the lamp for him, and he had taken up his book. Would Mary go to him now? No, Mary would wait a little.

As she looked about the familiar room memories rushed upon her that filled her eyes with tears—the gentle mother who had passed away when she needed a mother most; the aunt whose rigid rule had blighted the child's life; the father whose iron will had found in her a will fully as strong and whose harsh words had driven her from his door and into the great world beyond. Perhaps she had been wrong to leave him as she did, but her soul rebelled against the narrow limits of her life in the little hamlet. She wanted knowledge; she wanted society. There had been a wordy strife, and she had gone forth.

Later on, when she had established herself in the city by the lake and the cruel days of the early struggle seemed passed, she had written to him, but he had not answered. She wrote again. Her letter was returned. He was very hard and very unforgiving. Occasionally she heard of him in indirect ways. Once she met a man from the neighborhood, and he told her that her father never spoke of her and never permitted her name to be mentioned in his hearing.

And so the years passed, 15 of them, and then a great longing to see her father came to her. It came to her after the death of her child. And so she was here. Mary put a huge apron over her traveling dress and went to work. She had not forgotten her cunning. The abiding places of the dishes came back to her; the recipes of long ago were swiftly recalled. The young woman watched her quick movements with fascinated eyes. Mary wanted to prepare the evening meal alone, and she had her way.

Presently she glanced a little anxiously at the clock. Then she smoothed down her hair and went forward to the sitting room door. The old man did not hear her approach. She looked at him a moment before she spoke. No; he was not greatly changed—grayer and thinner; that was all. "Father," she said. He looked around. "Why, it's Mary," he said. "I was just dreaming of you. I had fallen asleep. So you have come back?" Mary did not move from the doorway.

"Yes," she said. "I have come back." A whimsical smile fluttered across her face. "Do you want wheat cakes for supper tonight, father?"

The old man stared a little. Then he nodded and turned and looked closer at his prodigal daughter. But she did not wait for him to speak.

"Very well," she said and vanished. She laughed as she came back to the kitchen. There was a suspicion of sadness in her merriment, but she nodded as if satisfied with her reception.

"It is the right way," she said. She was busy with her cakes when a slight noise in the doorway drew her attention. She turned and saw her father looking at her.

"I dreamed just now that you came to me and said you had come back," he cried in a querulous tone.

"Yes, I have come back," returned Mary as she bent again over her cakes.

"Yes," really you, Mary, is it?"

Muttering softly to himself, the old man turned from the doorway and sought his accustomed place by the fireside.

As he seated himself a smile crept over his features. It was a smile of triumph.

When Mary had the meal quite ready, she left affairs in charge of the young woman and sought her father.

He looked up as she passed in the doorway. He had been nodding at the fire. The smile of triumph still lingered on his wrinkled face.

"So you've come back, Mary?" he said again, as if he loved the sound of the words.

"Yes, father."

"I knew you would," cried the old man. "I knew you would! I told you you'd be glad to come back."

"I am glad to come back, father."

The old man nodded as if with satisfaction. "It's a bitter world, Mary—a bitter world for those that disobey and rise against their elders and flaunt their foolish pride."

"The world is very much what you make it, father."

"And what have you made of it, Mary?"

"I have tried to make the best of it, father."

"And you have come back?"

"Yes, father."

The smile of triumph deepened and widened.

"You have come back, as I said you would," cried the old man. "You have had your day of pride and folly, and you have come to the husks and the humiliation. Then you thought of the dear old home, the one place where you would find a welcome and a shelter, and you have come back. I knew it! I knew it all these years. I knew the punishment of the prodigal would break your haughty spirit. I knew you would come back."

His voice had risen as his vehemence increased, but it dropped at the closing words, and he sank back in the chair.

Then Mary went around the little table and faced her father.

"Father," she said, and her voice was clear and calm. "You are quite wrong. Your dream has been a false one. Look at me, my father. And she drew herself up before him, and his smile faded as he gazed up at her with troubled eyes. "Do I look like the prodigal applicant? Do I look like one whom the world has cast off? No, my father; I am an honest woman and a good woman, and there is naught in my past of which I should be ashamed. It is not the story of a prodigal that I am about to tell you. It is the story of a woman who went out into the world and fought her way upward and kept herself unsinched through the struggle. Your dream was all untrue, my father."

She paused and leaned her hand upon the table. "When I went from you, she resumed, "I was determined that I would not return until I had shown my independence. You called it a wicked pride, but it was that that kept me up and spurred me on. The great city seemed cold and forbidding, but I did not despair. I found a place where honest work was honestly rewarded. I was faithful and loyal, and my services were appreciated. I made friends as I rose, one of them a young man in whose ambitious hopes I became deeply interested. Perhaps it seemed foolish, but we fancied we could be of greater help to each other if we were married. Now we know that we were right." She paused again. "Your dream was all untrue, my father."

The old man's smile had quite faded, and there was no tenderness in his voice.

"Your pride is still your master," he said. "But you are a married woman?"

"Yes, father."

"You have a home?"

"Yes, a beautiful home."

"I had two, but God took one from me. It was that, I think, that turned my thoughts to you. We have a boy, a sturdy fellow of 12. Do you care to know his name? It is Gilbert Blair Hamerton. Some day you shall see him."

The old man winced a little.

"Your husband's name is Hamerton?"

"Yes, father; Philip Hamerton."

The old man nodded his head. "I shall not forget the name," he muttered. "It is the same as the new senator's."

Mary smiled.

"The same name and the same man, father."

The old man started up. "Your husband?"

"Your son-in-law, father."

"Your husband," the old man murmured, "the idol of the public, the man who may be president of the United States?"

"Yes, father," said Mary. "And when he comes he will tell you that in all he has accomplished I have been his adviser and his faithful helper."

"Coming here?" cried the old man.

"Yes, father. I left him behind at Northmore's, with instructions to follow me in an hour. He will soon be here."

The old man clutched the arms of his chair and stared at his child. The scales were dropping from his eyes. The blindness of prejudice was gone. He saw that she was a beautiful woman, straight and supple of figure, clear of eye, with dignity and character expressed by every movement. A warm wave surged across his old heart.

And as he caught her glance a tender smile overspread her face.

The old man dropped his gaze. His hands trembled.

"Mary," he murmured, "it was a wicked dream—a wicked dream!"

She was on her knees by his side in a flash, with a loving hand caressing his gray locks.

"Yes, my father," she softly said, "it was a wicked dream, and like all wicked dreams, the sooner we can forget it the better. But, father dear, let me have the prodigal's kiss of forgiveness."

"Mary," the old man brokenly murmured.

"There!" she cried as she arose. "And now for the supper—the supper that is to show you that I haven't forgotten the lessons I learned in those early years. Hark! There is Philip! I hear his footstep on the gravelled walk."

The old man arose as she turned and hurried to the door. There were tears in his eyes.

"Mary has come back," he murmured very softly.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Irishman's Request.

In the days when flogging was in vogue as a punishment in the British navy a Scotchman and an Irishman, on the arrival of their ship in harbor, obtained leave to go ashore for a couple of days, and they overstaid the period of leave granted them. When they did put in an appearance, they were ordered 50 lashes each. On the day of the punishment a parade was ordered to witness the infliction of the flogging.

When all was ready, the Scotchman asked as a favor to be allowed a piece of canvas on his back while he received his flogging. The captain granted his request and, turning to the Irishman, asked him if he required anything on his back while he was being flogged, to which he replied, "If ye please, yer honor, I'd loike to have the Scotchman on my back, if ye wouldn't mind."

It Was His Deal.

A mining engineer who has returned from Alaska brings, among other interesting things, evidence that the higher the latitude the greater the latitude. Watching a poker game in which the stakes were heavy he saw a player give himself four aces from the bottom of the pack.

Burned with indignation at such shameless cheating, he turned to a bystander and whispered, "Did you see that?"

"See what?"

"Why, that fellow dealt himself four aces!"

"Well, wasn't it his deal?"

Why We Bathe.

Professor Vivian Lewes, at the London Institution, recently furnished the following answer to the question, "Why do we bathe?" Twenty-eight miles of sweat glands in our skin are discharging 26 ounces of water per day and leaving upon the outer surface of the skin a full ounce of solid matter. These are aided by the old glands of the hair, which facilitate the adherence of external dirt. Hence the refreshing character of the morning bath and the necessity for grease absorbing alkalies in soap.

Softening the Parlin.

Twelve was on the point of striking. "To think," cried the fair girl in anguish, "we will never see each other again till tomorrow night!"

"Bear up, sweet one!" was his encouraging remark. "Time will pass. Besides, I'll write to you when I get home and in the morning."—Philadelphia Times.

A Remarkable Lintment.

The humorist of the Cynthiana (Ky.) Democrat remarks: "One of the surgeons of Cynthiana has discovered a valuable lintment. The other day he used it on the leg of a politician who had scarcely been able to walk for several years. Now the politician is running for office. Another trial was on a friend's arm. The friend immediately struck him for ten."

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic Asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After taking one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.

Yours respectfully, O. D. PHILIPS, M. D.

DR. TAFT BROS. MEDICINE CO. February 5, 1901. Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous remedies, but they have all failed. SONOMA, AUGUST 10, 1901.

H. H. GRANICE - EDITOR

THE destruction by fire of the entire business portion of Calistoga on Friday evening of last week ought to act as a warning note to the people of Sonoma. Owing to a lack of water and rotten wooden mains this town is in danger at all seasons of the year of meeting the fate of Calistoga. The dispatches tell us that in less than an hour property valued at over $75,000 went up in smoke and flame. Owing to the meagre water supply of our unfortunate sister town the insurance rates were so excessive that there were less than $15,000 in risks on the property destroyed. This would make a net loss of $60,000 to the victims of the fire besides the loss sustained to their business interests during the interval of rebuilding and starting anew.

Half of the $60,000 lost at this fire would have given Calistoga a municipal water system that would have easily paid for itself in combatting the fire fiend on this occasion alone, but like Sonoma her kickers against public improvements prevented her from being in a position to protect herself from a general conflagration and—the town was wiped out.

The fate of Calistoga will some day be the fate of Sonoma, for we, too, are entirely at the mercy of the fire fiend. Better expend $25,000 for a municipal system of water works than suffer the woe of Calistoga. Forewarned is forearmed.

THE crook that planned and executed the $280,000 gold brick robbery at Crockett last Tuesday morning was a Past Master among thieves. It was the most gigantic robbery of modern times. Of course the cracksmen and his pals will never be caught, tried and convicted. With $280,000 in gold as their backing they will be in a position to remove any obstacles placed in the way of their apprehension by over-officious detectives and still have money to burn.

VOTERS will do well to keep in mind until the gubernatorial election next fall Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 28, and record against it an emphatic and overwhelming no. The best evidence obtainable brands it as a cleverly devised scheme to hinder if not to deprive towns of the State of the right to own and operate municipal water and light plants.

GEO. W. DAVIS, father of ex-School Superintendent E. W. Davis of Sonoma county and Hon. W. R. Davis, the well-known lawyer of Oakland, died at his home in Santa Rosa Tuesday night, at the ripe old age of 83 years.

Now that the Selby smelting works at Crockett have been robbed of a large number of genuine gold bricks it is in order for the gold brick swindler to get in his work. Look out for him.

Brevities.

W. F. Shattuck and Henry Elsworth of San Francisco visited the Petaluma Club preserve last Saturday.

Add a little turpentine to the water with which the floor is scrubbed. It will take away the close smell and make the room delightfully fresh.

Excellent lamp wicks may be made of men's soft felt hats by cutting them into strips the width required, letting them soak two hours in vinegar and drying them.

Last Wednesday in the Catholic Church at Petaluma High Mass was celebrated for the protection of the citizens of that city from earthquakes, Salinas and other towns in the State having experienced shocks during the past week.

THE OBSERVER.

The big I am is an awful bore, He's egotistic to the core; He thinks he is the world in fact, While others think him the jump in' juck.

The big Ich bin is just as bad, He rolls his r's. He's a German cad. He pulls his whiskers and struts about, While others call him "sauerkraut."

The big je Suis is another brag; He's all puffed up—don't need no tag; He shrugs his shoulders and twirls his cane While the world says, "Monsieur, you give us ze pain."

Then Ho! ye Egoes, far and wide, Don't forget the world will chide; With all your eyes you should see, The folly of your repartee.

The San Francisco Almshouse is over-crowded. Not with people altogether needy or altogether worthy. It should be re-christened "The Mother-in-Law's Retreat" or "Bummers' Lodge." Either name would convey a more definite idea of the institution. The authorities have discovered that many of the inmates have been thrust within its charitable domain simply because some wealthy relatives grew tired of them and were anxious to get them off their hands. Such action as this is intolerable. It is not doing right by the public, let alone by the helpless victim. Taxpayers are forced to support individuals who could well be supported in private, and those individuals are made objects of charity in spite of themselves. This evil can and will be remedied. But what can we do with the loafer? He gets that tired feeling and believing that the world owes him a living succeeds by some hook or crook in getting railroaded into the Almshouse. If we make the conditions of admittance more rigorous we are liable to close the doors upon some truly worthy person and the loafer would only find some other knot hole to get in by. The situation is a difficult one.

The strike has taken on serious aspects. No agreement seems possible between the warring forces, and as a consequence all branches of industry are tied up. The men themselves who are out on the strike say they do not want to give any trouble but that they have been forced to take a stand and will now assert their rights. They claim that labor as well as capital has an equal right to combine. In fact there is a secret rejoicing in the ranks. Labor is making itself felt.

"Who steals my purse steals trash," but who steals a third of a million dollars steals Cash. This is the difference between the petty larceny thief and the royal robber who goes in for big game and generally gets it.

The robbery at the Selby smelting works was a well planned and finished piece of business. The perpetrators of the crime were deliberate. They used their heads. We cannot help admiring such craft in spite of ourselves.

There are robbers and there are robbers. A footpad is intolerable; a sneak thief is despicable; a shop lifter is de-pisable, but a highwayman and a bank robber are really fascinating. There is a code of ethics, too, if you may call it so, among these people. The master robber would not stoop to the low trickery of some of the petty thieves. It is beneath his dignity to loot units. He don't mix in the shuffle with the "Wharf Rat" and such trash. He belongs to the exclusive set. He is a gentlemanly schemer with big ideas, determinations and results. As such we admire him.

As to the crime itself we feel that is a serious breach of law and order. It sets a bad example, too, and stimulates the brain of youth and weaklings to piratic thought. If there is a "taking" tendency, the excitement generated by a third of a million steal is apt to develop it. A certain element look upon such an act as a piece of heroism and they crave to eclipse it.

This is why we uphold the law so vigorously—why we demand the punishment of crime and why we must fight down the spark of admiration that we are apt to kindle upon hearing of brilliant boldness.

A grass fire broke out alongside the western boundary line fence of the W. S. Miller farm in the eastern suburbs of town Wednesday morning and destroyed a portion of the picket fencing and scorched a number of walnut trees. The damage was slight but might have proved considerable had not the neighbors turned out and assisted forman Stevenson in getting the fire under control with wet sacks. The fire was caused by a sudden and untimely gust of wind springing up while Mr. Stevenson was burning the grass off alongside the road, causing him to lose control over the fire.

AN EPIGUREAN BURGLAR

Robs Mine Host Modini's Till and Taps His Larder.

Mine host Modini of the Garibaldi House was the victim of a midnight burglar on Wednesday last. The rascally crook was not only an adept at till tapping but was an epicurean as well.

Shortly after one o'clock Wednesday morning, when hobgoblins are abroad and graveyards are said to yawn, the Garibaldi House was entered by a midnight marauder, who proceeded in a leisurely way to lay his hands on everything in sight that could be conveniently carried off.

He entered the rear yard of the hotel through a picket fence, using a saw and a long iron bar for the purpose. Three pickets were sawn through and then pried off with the iron bar. Both tools were left where they had been used. The burglar then entered a rear entrance to the hotel, which is always kept open, and gained access to the hallway. He then made his way into the hotel office with the aid of a skeleton key. He then tackled the money till behind the bar with a hatchet which he had secured in the back yard and pried it open. He then carried the till into the hallway and abstracted its contents, consisting of $9 or $10 in small change, two watches, three razors, a sack of rare old coins and a bowie knife.

Having secured this booty the daring burglar then applied his skeleton key to the larder door of the hotel, a large room off the hallway and entering the same proceeded to enjoy a midnight banquet all to himself. He regaled himself with mine host Modini's cold meats and cheeses which he washed down with liberal portions of choice wines and beers, not forgetting a potuse cafe and the cigars as a finishing touch.

Having satisfied his inner man, he picked up his booty and without creating the least disturbance vanished in the darkness.

No clew to the crook or crooks has as yet been obtained. It is not thought, however, that the croakers, who obtained $280,000 in gold bricks from the Selby smelting works at Vallejo Junction had a hand in this latter job.

His Ride Cost Him $3.00.

Henry Mott, a waiter employed at the Lawrence Villa, was arrested Monday on complaint of Dr. T. A. Nufer, the veterinary surgeon, who charged him with malicious mischief. The accused presented himself before Judge Small and pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined "a fiver." Mott's offense was the taking of complainant's horse and sulky from a hitching post in front of the Lawrence Villa, without permission of the owner, and taking his best girl out for a spin about the town. After riding around a bit Mott tied the horse to a hitching post from which he broke loose, damaging the harness. Nufer demanded pay for the damage, but Mott said nay. Hence the arrest.

Grass Fire—Fentes Destroyed.

A grass fire broke out alongside the county road opposite the Baletti place at one o'clock Monday morning, and for a time threatened great damage to the Batto, Cutter and Baletti ranches. The fire was discovered by Jas. Law, who is at present working on the Batto place. He gave the alarm and the men from the neighboring farms turned out and extinguished the fire with wet sacks. About nine hundred feet of fencing on the Baletti place was destroyed before the fire was got under control.

THE NEW ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

Erecting Poles Between Napa, Sonoma and Petaluma.

The California Central Gas and Electric Light Company, which has bought up the two electric light plants in Santa Rosa and is negotiating for those of Petaluma, San Rafael and other places in this and adjacent counties, now has a force of men in the field erecting a line of poles from Napa to Petaluma.

Ten linemen and four surveyors, with headquarters at the Union Hotel in this place, are at present engaged in erecting poles south of town. They are heading toward Petaluma as "the crow flies." Another force of men are working from Napa toward Sonoma and by the time Petaluma is reached the California Central will no doubt have absorbed the Burdell electric light system of that town.

The big company will take possession of the two Santa Rosa plants on September 1st, and has already announced in the local papers its schedule of lighting rates. The schedule of rates is as follows: For stores and other public places a flat rate of from 70 cents to 80 cents per month will be charged for each 16 candle power light, according to the number used. For dwellings one, two or three 16 candle power lights will cost $130 per month; four lights, $170; five, $210; six, $235; seven, $270; eight, $295. For each additional light 35 cents will be charged. It will be observed that these rates are higher in some instances than is charged by the local electric light company of Sonoma, but for the most part they are about the same.

In speaking of the California Central Company the Chronicle of the 6th inst. says:

"An important lighting project for several towns north of this city is brought into prominence by the recording of a million dollar trust deed to the Mercantile Trust Company by the California Central Gas and Electric Company. The bonds are of $1,000 each and are to draw 5 per cent, maturing at the close of thirty years. The basis of the company is the electric plants at Chico, Woodland, Marysville, Nevada City and Grass Valley, owned and operated by John Martin, and the money to be raised by the bonds is to be partly used in the purchase of gas and electric plants at Napa, Santa Rosa, Petaluma, San Rafael and the adjacent towns of Belvedere, Mill Valley and Ross Valley. The two plants at Santa Rosa and that at Napa have already been bought, while negotiations are well in progress for the acquisition of the various lighting plants at Petaluma, San Rafael and its surrounding towns.

Of the authorized $1,000,000 of bonds issued, the $750,000 to be disposed of at this time have been bought by a syndicate in which San Franciscans are prominently identified. The money is to be used in the payment for the plants bought or to be purchased and in the construction of pole lines and in betterments. The California Central Gas and Electric Company obtains its electric supplies of 3,000 horsepower for Napa, Santa Rosa, San Rafael, etc., and of 2,000 horsepower for Chico, and the other northern towns from the Bay Counties Power Company and the Butte Electric Light and Power Company.

Bicycle Accident.

Clarence Cheney, with Hale Bros. & Co., Petaluma, while on his way to this place Sunday to visit relatives met with a painful accident. He was descending a steep hill, was thrown from his bicycle and had one of his knees badly cut and bruised. He returned to Petaluma Monday by train and resumed his duties in the store but the injury became so painful he was compelled to quit work and look up a doctor. He is now at the home of his parents in this place, where he will remain until he is able to return to his duties in Petaluma.

That is dyspepsia. It makes life miserable. It suffers not because they want to, but simply because they must. They know they are irritable and fretful; but they cannot be otherwise. They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of puffiness, headache, heartburn and what not. The effectual remedy, proved by permanent cures of thousands of severe cases, is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Hood's Pills are the best cathartic.

HENRY THOMPSON DEAD.

Succumbs to Consumption at the Age of 29 Years.

Henry C. Thompson, eldest son of ex-Supervisor P. H. Thompson, died at the home of his parents on the Napa road last Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The young man had long been a sufferer from consumption, contracted in San Francisco, where he had been in business the past eight or ten years. Nearly a year ago he went to Arizona in the hopes of conquering the disease that had fastened itself upon him. But in vain. He gave up the struggle and just one week before he breathed his last he came home to die.

Henry Thompson was born and raised in this valley, and had been engaged in the farm instead of engaging in commercial pursuits in San Francisco, his health, which was not always the best, might have improved with time. He was 29 years of age and unmarried.

The funeral took place Monday, the interment being in Mountain Cemetery.

Normal School Closes Its Doors.

Prof. A. C. McMeans' Normal School at Santa Rosa has closed its doors owing to a lack of students. This school has graduated many teachers the past twenty years. The introduction of High Schools into the county and the opportunities for higher education afforded by the State University and Stanford are the cause of the falling off of students in Santa Rosa's chief educational institution.

Died in San Ruentin.

Fred. Greiner's spirit passed beyond the grim portals of San Quentin on Saturday night, says the Press Democrat. He died in the prison hospital of quick consumption, having been confined there since July 15th. Greiner formerly lived at Occidental. About three years ago he was sentenced to serve twenty years' imprisonment for the killing of an Italian named Simoni near Occidental in a quarrel after nightfall.

Last Wednesday, at Greiner's request, Attorney F. McG. Martin went to San Quentin and at that time the dying man made his will, leaving his property to his sisters, share and share alike. He owned a 160 acre ranch near Occidental. Attorney Martin was named as executrix. One of the subscribing witnesses to the will was the Rev. A. Drahn, the well-known chaplain for many years at San Quentin prison. Above his signature Mr. Drahn writes that he witnessed the will at Greiner's request. The probable value of the property is about $2,000. The will was filed in the Superior Court on Monday.

THE TALE OF A DOG.

A TRUTHFUL NARRATIVE OF CANINE
TENACITY AND SAGACITY.

As the Story of the Feat Was Related by a Preacher Who Was a Party to the Incident No Further Testimony Is Necessary.

A certain Nashville statesman is about one of the best story tellers in Tennessee, and his repertoire includes a lot of good ones, fish and otherwise. One of the truthfulness of some he will stake his reputation for veracity, but he tells one which he always prefixes with the statement that it was told him by a minister of the gospel, Dr. Bardwell, who will be remembered here by the older inhabitants as the assistant of Dr. Edgar of revered memory, who was pastor of the First Presbyterian church during the latter years of General Andrew Jackson's life and attended the old hero in his last illness. The story tells said:

"Dr. Bardwell used to visit my father's house when I was a boy, and the story I am about to tell you was related to me on the occasion of one of these visits. We were out on the veranda smoking one evening after supper. The doctor was fond of dogs and was a pretty good sportsman and naturally the conversation turned on this subject.

"Speaking of dogs," said Dr. Bardwell, "reminds me of a dog which belonged to a friend of mine in Mississippi. I had been invited to hold services at a church near this friend's house and wrote him to meet me at the station, some six miles from his house, on the Saturday afternoon before Sunday, the day of the appointment.

"He was on time with horses, and we started to his home. I noticed that a very handsome bird dog followed us, and, having heard that some one in that neighborhood owned an especially well trained trick dog, I asked my friend about it.

"That's the dog," at the same time pointing at his dog, which had run ahead of us and was waiting at the forks of the road.

"I asked him to make him perform a trick. He got down from his horse, called the dog and, taking out his pocketbook, held it to the dog's nose. He then took out a silver half dollar and, walking some distance into the woods, raised up a large rock and put the money under it. We then resumed our journey, and when probably half a mile away my friend called his dog and told him to go back and get the money.

"The dog, without the least hesitation, started back on a run, and my friend explained, as the rock was heavy the dog would be unable to turn it over, so would have to scratch under it to reach the piece of money, and he would not probably get home before we reached there, it then being about three miles farther on to his house.

"However, when we reached home the dog was not there. We ate supper, and still the dog did not come, nor had he put in an appearance when we retired at about 10 o'clock.

"The next morning we got up about daylight, and, hearing a noise outside, my friend opened the door, and the dog rushed in dragging with him a pair of pantaloons, which he dropped on the floor.

"Of course we were both mystified, but had not long to wait an explanation, for shortly afterward a man who lived several miles from my friend's house rode up on a mule and inquired if a dog with a pair of pantaloons in his mouth had come into the house. The dog at this moment came out on the porch, and the man said, "Why, there's the dog now."

"My friend told his caller that the dog had really brought a pair of pantaloons home with him, but he did not understand it himself.

"The man said that late in the afternoon the day before he found the dog scratching under a large rock near the road and, thinking he was after a rabbit, stopped and lifted the rock up, and, to his surprise, found a half dollar on the underside.

"He put the money in his pocket, and the dog followed him home. The dog appeared to be friendly, and the man petted him and gave him his supper. At night when the family retired the dog was put on the outside, but he kept up such a racket that no one could sleep on the place, and when the man opened the door to drive the dog off he rushed into his bedroom and at once became very quiet, lying down near the foot of the bed, where he slept all night.

"Early in the morning, the man said, he got up and opened the window, and the instant he did so the dog seized his pantaloons in his mouth and, jumping out of the window, fled.

"The man followed as soon as he could get his mule.

"Hearing this story, my friend got the pantaloons and on searching the pockets found the half dollar which he had left under the rock the afternoon before."—Nashville Banner.

FIGS.

After figs have been collected they are dipped in boiling brine and then dried on trays for from two to four days, according to the weather. The dipping is supposed to bring the sugar to the surface and hasten the drying. After being dried the figs are placed in "sweet boxes," holding 2,000 pounds each, where they remain for two weeks. Then they are washed in cold salt water to remove all dirt and are packed by women and girls in half pound, one pound and ten pound boxes in layers, being split preliminarily with a short bladed knife.

Lake Morat, in Switzerland, has the curious property of turning red every ten years owing to the presence of certain aquatic plants which are not known in any other lake in the world.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid, gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membrane, causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION. "SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in five or ten days if used according to directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your case, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE.

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on the receipt of One Dollar. Address: Dept. E 428, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market street, Philadelphia.

A Minister's Good Work.

"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Power, of Emporia, Kan. "My neighbor across the street was sick for over a week, had two or three bottles of medicine from the doctor. He used them for three or four days without relief, then called in another doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning. He said his bowels were in a terrible fix, that they had been running off so long that it was almost bloody flux. I asked him if he had tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and he said, 'No.' I went home and brought him my bottle and gave him one dose; told him to take another dose in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured."

For sale by F. Duhring.

A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handicapped to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.
